Product Description:

The FNH series air-cooled condensers are specially designed for small to medium-sized refrigeration and freezing equipment. They feature high-efficiency internally grooved copper tubes paired with aluminum fins, delivering excellent heat transfer performance and superior cooling efficiency.

The casing is treated with anti-corrosion coating, ensuring durability and reliability even in harsh environments. Equipped with low-noise, high-efficiency fan motors, the units operate smoothly while significantly enhancing the overall system performance.

Compact in size, easy to install, and simple to maintain, the FNH series is widely used in cold storage rooms, display cabinets, ice makers, refrigerated trucks, and more. Various models and customized options are available to meet diverse application requirements.

Features:

High-efficiency heat exchange

The product offers a high-efficiency heat exchange system that ensures optimal performance while being energy-saving and eco-friendly.

Compact Structure

The design of the product features a compact structure that requires minimal space, making it suitable for various installation settings.

Premium Fans

Equipped with premium fans, the product guarantees quiet and efficient operation, providing a pleasant user experience.

Wide Model Range

Our product line includes a wide range of models to cater to different needs, along with flexible configuration options for customization.

OEM/ODM Customization

We offer OEM/ODM customization services to tailor the product according to specific requirements, ensuring a personalized solution.
