Product Description

DM-FNH Condenser

DM FNH series air-cooled condensers are specially designed for small to medium-sized refrigeration and freezing equipment. They feature high-efficiency internally grooved copper tubes paired with aluminum fins, delivering excellent heat transfer performance and superior cooling efficiency. The casing is treated with anti-corrosion coating, ensuring durability and reliability even in harsh environments.

Product Description:

The FNH series air-cooled condensers are specifically engineered for use in small to medium-sized refrigeration and freezing equipment. These condensers are equipped with high-efficiency internally grooved copper tubes paired with aluminum fins, ensuring exceptional heat transfer performance and superior cooling efficiency.

The casing of the condensers is coated with anti-corrosion protection, guaranteeing long-lasting durability and reliability even under challenging environmental conditions. With low-noise, high-efficiency fan motors, these units operate smoothly, significantly enhancing the overall system performance.

Compact in size, easy to install, and simple to maintain, the FNH series condensers find wide applications in cold storage rooms, display cabinets, ice makers, refrigerated trucks, and various other contexts. The FNH series offers a range of models and customized options to meet a diverse array of application requirements.

Features:

High-efficiency heat exchange, energy-saving and eco-friendly

Compact structure with minimal space requirements

Premium fans for quiet and efficient operation

Wide range of models and flexible configuration options

OEM/ODM customization available
